A NOBLE REVENGE.

A fair, fragile-looking boy, of apparently some fourteen years, stood leaning over the railing in the counting room of Glendon & Co., the great importers and merchant princes of the city of Boston.

There was a look of piteous pleading in his soft brown eyes; and his pale, sad face spoke more than words could tell of the fear and anguish with which his young heart was so cruelly rent.

'It is not myself that I care for,' he sobbed, gazing at the hard-featured man who was writing at one of the desks, 'but it's my mother, sir—this shock will kill her!'

'Young man, you ought to have thought of that before,' replied the hard-featured man, in a cold, harsh tone.

'But I'm innocent, sir. Indeed, sir, I never took the money.'

'How, then, do you account for the possession of part of the bills?'

'I can account for them in no other way, sir, than that I must have received them in change.'

'But where?'

'I cannot tell where.'

The stern merchant, for it was Mr. Glendon himself, looked up, while an ugly light beamed from his merciless eye.

'William Sanderson!' he exclaimed, laying his watch upon the desk, while the hard lines around his face became still harder, 'I will give you just five minutes to reveal what you have done with that money. If at the end of that time you are silent, I shall give you in charge of the officer.'

And he resumed his writing.

The boy leaned still further over the mahogany railing, and the great sobs which shook his frail form, it would almost seem, would have moved a heart of adamant.

But the merchant was made of even sterner stuff, and did not once look up until the five minutes had expired.

'Now, sir!' he said taking up his watch with an impatient gesture and glancing at the boy.

'I cannot tell, sir; for indeed I did not steal it, sir—I came honestly by those bills.'

'Enough said,' was the merchant's quiet rejoinder, as he stamped his foot upon the floor.

'Oh, spare me, sir—spare my mother,' pleaded the boy, tears of anguish and shame streaming down his cheeks. 'Be merciful und heaven will reward you. Oh——'

'Enough said!' repeated the merchant with stern emphasis. 'Not another word from you, sir—not another word!'

'Officer,' he added as a policeman entered, 'there is the culprit—do your duty.'

And half dead with terror, William Sanderson was dragged away to the prison.

'Only a woman fainted, your honor,' said the sheriff, in response to the interrogatory of the Judge, next day, in the crowded police court-room.

But, with one wild spring, William Sanderson cleared the prisoner's dock, and was beside the inanimate person.

'Oh, mother, speak to me!' he cried, as kneeling down he placed his cheek to hers. 'Oh, I am not guilty—indeed I am not—my innocence will yet be proved. Oh, will not some one bring a glass of water—anything quick!' and he glanced around wildly upon the array of pitying faces.

A medical gentleman who chanced to be present stepped forward.

Giving her a hasty glance, he knelt beside the boy, and placed his hand quickly upon her heart.

'Be brave, my boy,' he said, as he placed one hand upon the youth's head. 'I can do nothing for her; she is past all mortal help.'

In a dazed sort of way the lad arose and looked around him.

'Make way for an important witness,' called the crier, from the extremity of the court-room near the door.

There was a hurried consultation on the bench, and then Thomas Ellsler was called to the stand.

His testimony was straightforward and conclusive.

He had received the bills from Mr. Glendon himself in change for a draft. Mr. Glendon having called his attention to the fact that they were marked at the time. And he had paid them out to William Sanderson, in change, never expecting to hear from them again.

But having just at that moment read a paragraph in the morning paper in relation to the case, he had hastened to the court-room to prevent an injustice from being done.

Mr. Glendon admitted now that he recollected the circumstance of the payment, which had slipped his memory.

With a strong reprimand of Mr. Glendon the judge ordered the discharge of the prisoner.

Utterly humiliated, the stern merchant approached William Sanderson. Even his hard heart was melted.

'Forgive me, William,' he said, holding out his hand: 'I will give you back your old place, and double your pay also, in consideration of my error.'

Then, for the first time, did the poor victim arouse from his lethargy.

'Will you give me back my dead mother?' he demanded, fixing his eyes, in which now glittered a steely light, upon those of his employer.

'No, I cannot do that,' replied the merchant, still proffering his hand, 'but I will repair, so far as lies in my power, the wrong I have done you. Let us be friends.'

'Never!' exclaimed the youth, the steely glitter increasing to a glare. 'Never will I be friends with my mother's murderer. There will be a grave between us—a grave that I will some time avenge.'

And he brushed by the merchant and was lost in the throng.

Twenty years had passed away, bringing its usual vicissitudes and changes.

The great house of Glendon & Co. had gone down in the midst of a terrible financial panic, such as frequently sweep over the country, and Mr. Glendon was a poor man, dependant for his daily bread upon the labors of his son, who held a clerkship in the rapidly rising establishment of Sanderson & Allen.

But suddenly this support to his declining years seemed about to be taken away.

Roger Glendon was accused of forgery. 'It cannot be true,' the old merchant repeated to himself; 'yet I will go and see.'

And he hastened to the counting-room of his son's employers.

He found the senior partner of the firm alone.

'I have called,' he said, 'in relation to the reported accusation against my son. Tell me, is it true?'

The gentleman gave a great start of surprise, when he began to speak, but when he had concluded, arose and handed him some papers without a word.

In them he discovered ample evidence that would convict his son.

'Spare him!' he pleaded, as he returned the papers. 'Spare him, for I am sure I never meant to wrong you, and he will some time pay you to the uttermost farthing. Be merciful to my gray hairs, sir—he is all the support and dependence of my declining years—and let them not be brought in sorrow to the grave.'

'Not another word, sir,' was Mr. Sanderson's reply. 'I wish to hear no more. Your son will not suffer unjustly, as I once did.'

Something in the speaker's tone arrested the old man's attention, and he gazed at him fixedly.

'Do you know me, sir?' inquired the rich merchant.

'I think I have seen you somewhere,' replied his petitioner, 'but where, I cannot recall to my mind.'

'Don't you remember that scene in the police court room years ago when the mother of an innocent boy, fell dead with surprise and horror at beholding her son in such a place? Don't you know William Sanderson?'

The old man uttered a gasping cry and tottered back against the wall.

'Heaven help me!' he moaned, 'for your hour of vengeance has come at last.'

'Can you call on heaven for help?' demanded the merchant. 'The Book says, 'With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again,' does it not?'

His visitor answered not a word, but appeared entirely overcome with his weight of agony.

Then he grasped the papers, and walking to the old man's side passed them into his hands.

'Take them,' he said, the steely glare in his eye giving place to a softer light; 'take them and destroy them. They are the only evidence of your son's crime.'

The old merchant gave a joyful gasp.

'Do you mean it?' he cried, clutching them firmly.

'I mean so,' replied William Sanderson, nervously.

'Then you forego your vengence?'

'Yes I will restore your son to you, free from every taint upon his name. I will keep him in my counting-room. I am not afraid to trust him now, for he will be as grateful to me as I should have been to you, had you chosen to spare me. Good day.'

And William Sanderson had completed his revenge.

In 1813 there was built in Waltham, Mass., a mill believed to have been the first in the world which combined all the requirements for making finished cloth from raw cotton.

"HER YANKEE."

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

There is a long lapse of years between that time and this, but the incident has lost none of its pathos or beauty, because of that.

I can see her now as she trips along to school, a sweet little girl of 7 years, her sunny curls blown back from a fair forehead, her bright blue eyes glad in the innocent happiness of childhood.

It was in 1864 that there were a few prisoners of war brought to G—— for incarceration and kept here several months, well guarded. Little Sallie passed the prison every morning on her way to school, and, with childish curiosity, though not evincing any fear, she would look at the gloomy place of confinement giving a glance of commingled pity and awe at the prisoners, peering hopelessly from the small windows of the forbidding house. The men, weary of the monotony of captivity, were glad to see the little sunbeam as it flitted by, morning and evening, though it left them in shadow.

There was one, however, pale and sick, whom the child gazed at in mute sympathy, and he in return would smile at her until once he called her, saying: "Come and bid me good morning, and tell me your name."

Attracted by his gentle manner and refined appearance, she approached and said: "My name is Sallie, and what is your name?"

"Charlie," he answered; then he said, "My dear little girl, if you have anything in your bucket please give me something to eat, for I am sick and cannot eat prison fare."

"I will give it all to you, but I don't know how to get it way up there."

"Ask the guards to let you pass."

With childish confidence she went to the nearest guard, but was courteously refused, and going back, told the Yankee. He then bade her ask the guards to pass the bucket to him.

Returning to the sentinel, she said so earnestly, "Please carry this to that poor man, who is so sick," that the Confederate soldier could not resist the pleading eyes and manner, or the compassionate feelings of his own heart, and taking the lunch passed it as requested. So it continued for a week, until the child was seen coming with two buckets, one for herself, the other for "her Yankee."

She was afraid to reveal her secret at home, fearing she might be denied the privilege of feeding her Yankee, and when her mother asked her why she carried two buckets and why she chose the daintiest and best of all on the table, she replied: "Oh, mamma, it is for a poor person not able to buy nice things to eat." The evasion was pardonable under the circumstances. Often did she deprive herself of delicacies to be put into the "other" bucket; and so it went on for four months, the guards allowing her to pass freely, and her mother encouraged her in her charitable deed, but never dreaming who was the recipient.

At last Sallie passed one evening and the prison was empty. Her Yankee and his companions had been exchanged and had gone to join their respective commands. Sallie quietly stopped taking his lunches and her mother supposed she had simply become tired of it.

Four months passed in comparative peace, when the dread cry was heard, "The Yankees are coming!" Everybody tried to be calm and collected, but very few succeeded. Soon the town was "blue," and Sallie's mother had her front yard and porch full of the blue-coated strangers and among them two Lieutenants and one Captain. The lady had shut all her little children into the bedroom with the injunction, "Be perfectly quiet."

The Captain announced that he would like to have dinner for himself and men. Pale and solemn, not afraid, but feeling that her intruders were her enemies, she left them, and going to her room to see after the children found them "mute as mice," with the exception of Sallie, who would run to the window and turn the blinds. Her mother begged and scolded in an awful whisper—"Don't do that, Sallie!" "Just a little bit, mamma. I won't let them see me," and suiting the action to the word, she turned the blind very carefully and caught a glimpse of a face that she and she alone of all the family, had ever seen before.

"Oh! mamma, there's my Yankee!" she exclaimed, forgetting all precautions and instructions. "Let me go and see him; I'm not a bit afraid!" The poor mother, already in a state of bewilderment, thought that her bright and beautiful child had suddenly become bereft of her senses, and cried out. "Hush, Sallie! You have no Yankee, and they'll kill you if you go out there!" Being compelled to superintend the dinner, she locked the door to keep the child safe and returned to the kitchen.

When dinner was ready Mrs. —— went through the room into the hall where the soldiers were assembled, Sallie slipped her golden head out and stood partly in the door, while the men, slowly and silently, marched to the dining-room. When the seventh man passed he glanced at the child, and in a moment of glad recognition, caught her up in his arms and kissed her again and again.

"Mamma, I told you this was my Yankee!"

Mrs. —— stood in a state of amazement boarding on stupefaction, and the men were as much astonished. "This is my sweet little Sallie!" the Yankee exclaimed, and the child wound her arms around his neck whispering, "Charlie, I have the Yankee dollar you gave me yet." "Madam," said the soldier, "I must explain this scene, as you seem to be in total ignorance of my acquaintance with your little daughter. While I have never had the honor of seeing you before to-day, I am no stranger, as you see, to this dear little child. She saved my life by feeding me daily for months when I was sick and feeble for want of proper nourishment while a prisoner in this town." With tears filling his eyes he continued, "Ah! you would not be surprised at my loving her if you only knew, could comprehend, the dreariness of prison life and how this little angel brightened it by her visits and her charity. Do not have any fears, madam. I would protect your interests and this child with my life."

I do not know how long the soldiers remained in G —— but they left to join in other battles and Charlie was killed in one some time after.

Sallie is married, has a lovely home, two beautiful and interesting children and is a kind neighbor and friend.

The Romance of a Coal Stove.

One day last fall, after talking until his throat was sore, a Detroit stove dealer succeeded in selling a widow a coal stove, but it was with the proviso that if everything didn't work satisfactory he was to make it. Two days after delivering the stove he got his first call. A boy entered the store and said:

"Mrs.—wants you to come up and fix the stove. The house is full of smoke."

A man was sent up, and he found the trouble to be with the chimney. Only three or four days had passed when the boy came in again and said:

"That stove is puffing and blowing and scaring the widow to death. She wants the same man to come up again."

He was sent, and it was discovered that she didn't know how to arrange the dampers and drafts. Everything seemed to run well for a week, and then the boy walked in to announce:

"She sent me down to have you send that man up again. The house is full of coal gas."

The man went up and applied the remedy, but inside of three days the stove got to puffing; two days after that the fire wouldn't draw; then it drew too much; then gas escaped again. At length the dealer went to the house and said:

"Madam, you gave me $30 for the stove; how much will you take for it?"

"I wouldn't sell it."

"But I can't be sending my man up here every two or three days all winter."

"You won't have to. I've concluded to marry him in order to have some one here in case of accident."

And three days ago they were quietly and happily married.—Detroit Free Press.

An Awful Calamity.

[From the Arkansas Traveler.]

An old negro with an air of utter dejection sat on a bench in front of a cabin. Some one, seeing that he must be miserable, stopped and said:

'You do not seem to be enjoying yourself, old man.'

'No, honey. De time for my 'joyment is dun ober.'

'What is the matter?'

'Wife dun dead, honey.'

'I am very sorry to hear that, and I assure you that you have my sympathy.'

'Thankee, sah.'

'A man loses a good friend when his wife dies.'

'Dat he do, honey; dat he do. I has foun' dat out 'ter my sor', let me tell yer, an' now my good days is all gone.'

'What was the matte with your wife?'

'I dunno, honey. She tuk sick one night an' she died de naixt ebening. It wuz er awful blow on me, fur dat 'omen wuz earnin' $15 ebery munf. It wuz awful hard fur her to die jes' arter de white folks had raised her wages. 'Peared like long es she wucked for $12 er munf, she kep' her helt, but the $15 'peared like, wuz too much fur her. Yes, sah, she wuz snatched off at the berry time when she wuz de most use to me. I doan know what's goin' ter come o' me. I'll hab ter go ter wuck, I'se afreed.'

Immensely Excited.

He did not look like a joker. One to look at him would have said his soul was so lost in thought that he did not care two cents whether the sun set at noon or at ten o'clock. He entered the ladies' sitting room at the railway station (New York,) walked up to a woman whose husband had gone out about ten minutes previously, and camly enquired—

"Your husband went out to see the river, didn't he?"

"Yes," she replied, turning rather pale.

"He was a tall man, wasn't he?"

"He was," she replied, rising up and turning still paler.

"Had red hair, hadn't he?"

"He had. O, what has happened?'

"Couldn't swim, could he?"

"No! My husband is drowned! My husband is drowned!" she cried.

"Had on a silver watch chain?" continued the stranger.

"Oh, my husband! where is the body?" she gasped.

"Do not excite yourself, my dear madam. Did your husband have on a grey suit?"

"Dear Thomas! my Thomas! let me see him!" she cried.

"Come this way, madam, but do not get excited. Is that your husband across the street at that peanut stall?"

"Yes; that's him; that's my husband!" she exclaimed joyfully. "But you said he was drowned."

"No madam, I did not; but I saw him buying peanuts, and I believed it my duty to inform you they are not healthy at this season of the year."

He walked away, and she stood there and bit her parasol, and started after him like a menagerie on wheels.

Played To a Freeze Out.

Over in the treasury a story is told at the expense of a high official. The air in the room was rather chilly, but the clerks were found busily at work in their light office coats. They had warmed the bulb of the thermometer up to seventy-five, and awaited developments. The official remarked that it was cold and shivered and looked uneasily about the room. The clerk leisurely glanced at the thermometer and said it was very comfortable. The official looked and saw and wondered.

'I think I must have a chill,' he said, but he went to his desk.

Pretty soon the clerk in front of him deliberately pulled off his coat and resumed work.

'I am sure I must have a chill' again remarked the official, but every clerk had his nose down to business, and hadn't time to answer.

'Good heavens!' exclaimed another in a loud voice, pulling off his coat.

The official, still muffled in his overcoat and shivering, went over again and looked at the thermometer. A clerk had in the mean time applied the lighted end of a cigar to the bulb, and the mercury had jumped to eighty.

'Dear me!' said the official. 'I'm afraid I'm going to be sick.' After a little he pulled on his gloves and started for home, took quinine and whiskey, and went to bed. When he returned to the office next day the story met him in the corridor. He says it is all right; he is well, and the fellows who played it on him are sneezing their heads off.

American Thorough-bred Horses.

Formerly thorough-bred horses, as usually bred here, were either a trifle under or over fifteen hands high, as a general rule, very few reaching to or exceeding fifteen and one-half hands. Their weight in working condition varying from nine hundred to twelve hundred pounds. Stallions of this size were not suitable to get sufficiently stout class of roadsters, and in consequence of this, our farmers would seldom take their mares to them, even if their services were offered at quite moderate prices, as they often were, when not fast enough to win at a race, or for some other reason not kept on the course. Now among the best, and we believe the most successful breeders, thorough-breds are preferred of fifteen and one-half to sixteen and one-half hands high, and weighing eleven hundred to thirteen hundred pounds. These are large enough to get powerful carriage horses and general roadsters, on cold-blooded mares of good size. In England occasional thorough-breds attain seventeen hands, and we believe Harkaway and Harkforward were a trifle over this; but are not certain as to the fact. This is rather an undesirable size, but they were splendid horses, very fleet, and got superior stock. A grandson of Harkaway, we are informed, is now standing in Kentucky, and is a worthy descendant of this great horse.—A. B. ALLEN in American Agriculturist for February.

Talmage on Marriage.

"There are a vast number of people who ought not to be married. There are 940,000 more women in England than men, and about the same number in this country. The moral of such a fact is that thousands of women should regard it as a duty to take measures so effective that they should be able to take care of themselves. Another fact is that there are a very large number of men who are not fit to be married, and it is time to say that if a woman losses her integrity and her honor is not fit to be married, then it is equally true that a man who is untrue to the best promptings of his moral nature and is impure, is not fit to be married. John Wesley—as good a man as ever lived—was chained to a woman who did all she could to destroy his influence, and sat in City Road Chapel making mouths at him while he preached. Then there are women who are scolds and who look on you like a March northeaster. Then there are the opium-eating women—400,000 of them in America to-day—who will have their drug although it costs them the greatest treasure of their household. I urge you to ask divine guidance, because society is full of artificiality. After her dress-maker, her hair adjuster, her jeweler and other mysterious agencies have transformed a woman, how can an unsophisticated man discern the real meaning of these physiological hieroglyphics? Men are by these means swindled, they make a bargain from a sample, and when the goods come to be delivered they find that they are not equal to the sample. They marry a sweet-tempered woman, as they suppose, and she turns out to be a Jezebel; they marry a woman as meek apparently as the sainted Mary, and they get a Lucrezia Borgia when they thought they had a Martha Washington. I care not for such women or the richness of their upholstery, for I will tell them they are not as honest as the Cyprians on the street; for these latter advertise their infamy, but the former profess heaven when they mean hell.

"A great deal has been said about women being taken from the ribs of Adam. But there are twenty-four ribs, and there are twenty-three possibilities to one that you will get the wrong rib. John Milton, the poet, who was blind, was told that his wife was a rose, and he replied, 'I am not much of a judge of color, but I think that it is very likely so, for I feel the thorn.' Look at Solomon, whose married life was as unhappy as it was multitudinous, and among the wise observations of his experience in this matter is this: 'A continual dropping on a very rainy day and a contentiuous woman are alike.'

"If in this matter you make no mistake you will have two heavens, one here below and one hereafter; but if you do make a mistake you have two hells, one here and one hereafter."

Dr. Talmage concluded by giving a number of illustrations of the beneficence of women as a Christian, and closed with a pathetic and touching description of the scenes around his own mother's death-bed.

Two Wall Street Pictures.

A speculator in four years has paid one firm in Wall street the sum of $250,000 in commissions, says a New York letter. He was a wealthy man when he went into the street with a laudable but unwarrantable desire to increase his patrimony by speculating in stocks. Now, so heavy have been his losses that he would be satisfied if he possessed the sum he has paid out in commissions. As it is, he will cheerfully accept a clerkship in the said firm, who wish to avail themselves of his numerous acquaintances to increase their custom. If he had been contented with a handsome sufficiency for the day, amounting really to super-abundance, he would now be in affluence instead of in the position of comparative destitution he is.

On the other hand, a young clerk a few years ago commenced to speculate in the street with $200, the savings of a year's abstinence from smoking, and now is worth in real estate over $1,000,000 and several more in secucities. In Wall street speculation, more than in anything else, what is gain for one man is ruin for another.

L. A. SHAFFER, Secretary. ADAM HOY, Chairman

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES on motion of Mr. Brown. (Pa.) a bill was passed on Monday increasing the limit of cost of the public building at Williamsport from $125,000 to $225, 000, and appropriating a further sum of$50,000 for the purchase of additional ground.

PHILADELPHIA looks forward to a large building boom. The Record of that city says that plans are being prepared and contracts closed for the erection of large numbers ofdwellings and other buildings. Slight advances in building materials are taking place and others aae anticipated.

TO-DAY it is exactly a year that a Democratic President holds executive power. And still the nation's reputation is up to its elevated mark. Of course the chronic grumbler keeps up a dissatisfied mumbling in the distance, but that don't change the fact that all departments of the administration have received the most careful and efficient attention, and that the governmental machine at present runs as smoothly as it has done at any time in the last twenty-five years.

THE special message sent to the Senate by President Cleveland in the matter of removals and suspensions from office and the question of right of the senators to examine "all" papers and documents connected with such removals was read to that body on Monday. The message is a pointed and decisiv declaration, in which the President firmly declines to send copies of "unofficial" papers to the senate. This ought to be conclusive and Senator Edmunds ought to sit down and hold his peace forever.

The War On Mormonism.

A Bill With Very Stringent Provisions to Be Pushed in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Representative Woodburn, of Nevada, will tomorrow introduce in the House an anti-polygamy bill which has received the approval of prominent Gentiles in Utah and has been submitted to members of the judiciary committee of both houses of Congress. The preamble sets forth the practical evasion. by secret intrigue and the possession of political power by the Mormons, of the laws now in existence against unlawful cohabitation and that this evasion of the law is induced by the leaders, who openly advise the followers to resort to these illegal practices as a part of their religion.

It is therefore provided in the first section that no one who counsels others to cohabit with any other than a lawful husband or wife, or contributes to any organization authorizing such unlawful cohabitation, shall vote or hold office in any Territory or under the United States in any Territory, nor shall any such person acquire any title to any public lands or serve as a juror. Section 2 provides the form of test oath required of every person challenged under the first section before being registered as a voter. Section 3 provides a penalty of $1,000 fine and imprisonment of not more than fourteen years for swearing falsely as above. Section 4 and 5 provide that all persons elected or appointed to Territorial offices and any person seeking title to any public lands shall take the oath as prescribed in section 2.

Section 6 declares void all poll and registry lists now existing in the Territories and directs the Territorial election officers to prepare new lists of persons eligible this act.

—For scrofula, erysipelas, tetter, salt rhum, skin diseases humors, sores, eruptions, pimples, blotches, swellings, tumors, boils, ulcers, scald head, ringworm, hives, and all blood disorders, no remedy ever devised equals in efficacy and power McDonald's great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alternative. The Court House Question.

To the County Commissioners:

We, the undersigned, recognizing the work of the W. C. T. U. in their effort to suppress the evils of intemperance, and believing it to be a benefit to the county as well as locally, subscribe our names to their petition for the use of the Court House for future temperance meetings. (Signed),

Mrs. J. P. Harris,
" B'anchard,

To Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Blanchard and others:

The signers to the above petition asking for the use of the Court House for an indefinite length and number of times, consist of about 500 voters, representing only about one-sixteenth of the whole number of voters in the county. You have not given any special reason why we should grant the use of the Court House to the W. C. T. U. to the exclusion of all other societies. You infer that your society has been organized for the suppression of crime, and that you have societies all over the county, and therefore we should throw open the doors of the Court House to the use of the W. U. C. T. for public meetings.

Now, if we were to adopt this line of argument as a good and sufficient reason for granting your request, then we could not consistently refuse the Court House to any other organization. The Methodists, the Presbyterians, the Odd Fellows, the Free Masons, the Y. M. C. A., all might make the same demand of us to throw open the doors of the Court House whenever they want it for public meetings, as all are societies for the suppression of evil and for the elevation of mankind.

It is true, we did grant the Court House to the Teachers' Institute, because we recognized it as a county institution, authorised and created by the Legislature of the State, and most of the expenses for holding the same are paid out of the county treasury, and, therefore, we believe they had a legal right to its use. As custodians of the county property, built and kept in repair at the expense of the tax-payers, we cannot see the consistency of giving the Court House to one society and excluding others.

We know there is often personal abuse heaped upon us because we dared to do what we believed to be right, but a sense of duty compels us in this instance to refuse the Court House to the W. C. T. U, believing that our action will be sustained by a majority of the voters in the county—assuring you that it is not in any spirit of antagonism to the temperance cause that we have taken this stand.

In adddition th the above we beg leave to submit for your consideration the opinion of Judge Yerkes recently given before the court at Doylestown, Pa., which in our mind is a convincing evidence that we have no right to make a town hall of the Court House. Judge Yerkes said: "It is difficult to understand by what authority the County Commissioners permit the public buildings to be constantly occupied, let for a term of years and used for the government postoffice at Doylestown borough, or for any other purpose not connected with the public business of the county. These buildings were erected for the use of the people of Bucks county to conduct their public business in, and neither the general government nor the people of any borough or district of the county, nor any association, society, or corporation, however commendable, useful and worthy, has any special or peculiar privilege therein, especially to the exclusion and detriment of the convenient, economical conduct of the public business of the county. The Commissioners have no power or right to use these grounds to erect on them large and unnecessary buildings, and to rent them or any part of them out for any purpose; to concede that they may do so in one case is paying the road for further abuses. Other buildings might be constructed thereon for different purposes, and next we may expect these rooms to be occupied for lawyer's offices, or even shops or saloons by some favorite or relative of the Commissioners."

All of which is respectfully submitted. We are, respectfully,

JOHN WOLF,
A. J. GRIEST.

Went Into Effect Yesterday.

READING, Pa., March 1.—Eight per cent. increase in the wages granted 1, 800 employes in the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company's shops, went into effect to-day. The voluntary increase in the pay of the 150 moulders of the Reading Hardware Company was also announced to-day, and the 300 employes of the Penn Hardware Company were notified that an increase in wages would be made during the month.

Huntingdon's Gold Mania.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Feb. 28.—Intense excitement prevails in Brady Township, this county, over the discovery of a valuable deposit closely resembling gold. Jacob Zillius, a mineralogist, of the city, while prospecting for coal, found evidence of a large deposit of the valuable mineral when but 75 feet below the surface. An analytical chemist of Philadelphia reports that the ore is worth from $10,000 to $15,000 per ton. Mr. Zillius is now in consultation with capitalists of this city with the view of organizing a stock company to develope the land in which his valuable find has been made. In prospecting for gold Mr. Zillius struck a 3-foot vein of anthracite coal, which is now being developed. The land in the neighborhood that heretofore would not bring any price whatever has now risen to fabulous sums. Prominent capitalists of Philadelphia and Pittsburg are buying up the land with the view of developing its resources.

A PAYING INVESTMENT.—At this season of the year, when your cows fail in milk, your horses become rough in coat, your pigs refuse to thrive, the hens won't lay as many eggs as they should, you will find a package or two of McDonald's Celebrated Tonic and Blood Purifying Horse and Cattle Powders judiciously administered an investment that will pay bis dividends. They are positively the best Horse and Cattle Powders made. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. What other manufacturer dare make this offer. Sold by all dealers.

—In a private letter from Rev. J. Tomlinson to Mrs. Emma Tomlinson, of this place, the sad intelligence of Mr. Dem Tomlinson's death was announced. Deceased had been an employe on one of the Western railroads and while on duty was knocked off the cars, sustaining injuries which resulted in his death. The news must have been very shocking and sorrowful to the parents and friends, and we truly sympathize with them in their affliction.

—Ever since last Friday, with the exception of Sunday, heavy northwest winds prevailed, making the weather exceedingly cold and unpleasant. The fierce storms of Friday did great damage in Philadelphia, Reading, Huntingdon and other places. Houses were unroofed, church steeples were shaken out of position and barns were blown down, in some instances killing valuable live stock. Old men say that this is the stormiest winter known for years.

DEDICATION.—The dedication of St. Luke's Evangelical church of Millheim, which took place last Sunday was favored by a beautiful, sunny sky. On Saturday evening the first sermon in the new church was preached by Rev. J. M. Ettinger, P. E., preparatory to the dedicatory services of the next day. On Sunday morning long before the time for opening had arrived many of the people who were anxious to witness the dedication and wished to secure good seats were on their way to church. By ten o'clock the auditorium, the Sunday School rooms and the gallery were filled to their utmost capacity and the services were opened with an appropriate anthem by the choir. This was followed by the reading of a scripture passage and prayer by Bishop Dubbs. After another hymn the Bishop preached the dedicatory sermon to an attentive and intelligent audience. His text was taken from Exodus, XXXV: 4 5 6. By way of introduction he pointed out the similarity between the occasion spoken of in the text and the present occasion. Further on he emphasized that ministers should thoroughly understand their subjects upon which they preach and the gospel truths which they intend to teach. He strongly asserted that prayer and giving are twin-factors—the one being the breath of the soul, while the other is a religious duty, and that they must go together. He pointed out God's demand of gold from those who are in posession of it, for the erection of Houses of Worship and referred to Christ's condemnation of the miser. He also showed that nobody is excused from this duty of giving—that all have an opportunity and invitation to give according to their means. He dwelt on the necessity of building churches as a means of civilization and as places where the evils of the human heart may be rooted up. He stated that there is nothing more edifying and soul-inspiring than the united song and prayer of a worshiping people—in fact that every church is a fortress for Emanuel. By several touching illustrations he showed how much God has done for us and reminded his hearers that we should exhibit our gratefulness by giving willingly and cheerfully. All we are and all we have we owe to God. He closed his address by the remark that if his congregation believed what he had preached—which they knew to be true—their time to prove it had arrived. He then disclosed the fact that a debt of $2000 rested on the church which it was his purpose and task to liquidate. In less than an hour about $1700 were raised after which all present joined in singing the doxology and were dismissed.

In the afternoon Bishop Dubbs preached an excellent German sermon from Mark I: 35-38, but as we were prevented to attend in person we are unable to comment upon his remarks at that time. The work of soliciting funds was continued and resulted in the collection of about $100.

The evening session was again attended by a crowded house and was opened by an anthem Rev. S. Smith offered up an earnest prayer, after which Bishop Dubbs again preached from Mark XV: 21. He treated the history of Simon, the Cyrenian, and laid sufficient stress on the fact that Simon's assistance to our Saviour in bearing the cross upon calvary was compulsory, but intimated that this compulsion was likely brought about by Simon himself. He vividly described the crucifiction scene and called attention to the glorious privilege of this Simon to be so near Christ and render active service to the Master. He declared that through the cross of Christ the world gains better men and women daily. He admonished his hearers to be ready and willing to help to bear each other's crosses and illustrated the beauty of such a spirit by several well applied and interesting anecdotes.

In all his sermons the Bishop gave no uncertain sound but revealed the truths contained in the Bible fearlessly and effectively. He had his audience touched to tears in many instances and the contributions throughout the day proved that he had fully succeeded to get the people in a humor to give. After the evening service the lacking $200 were raised in a very short time and the impressive and solemn dedication ceremonies were gone through with. At the close of a few parting remarks in German by Bishop Dubbs the congregation rose and sang the doxology, and the members of the church went home rejoicing that their house of Worship was now complete, consecrated and paid for while the community feels proud of another fine church structure.

—That old established cough remedy Downs' Elixir, still more than holds its own in the public estimation, despite sharp and active competition. It is a "home remedy," and in this locality needs no words of praise from us, so well and favorably known is it. It is the standard remedy for coughs, colds and all throat troubles, with great numbers of our people, and their continued use and unsolicited recommendation of it speaks in its favor.—Burlington, Vt., Free Press, Jan. 26, 1882

A carload of these renowned machines was due at Coburn last Friday morning, but having been delayed along the road, did not arrive at the station until in the afternoon. The day was one of the coldest and stormiest we had this winter, but in spite of the raw and unpleasant weather the farmers turned out with their teams bright and early, anxiously awaiting the arrival of their machines. When they finally reached Coburn at about 3 o'clock, the work of unloading and reloading was at once commenced and it was nearly dark before the men were ready to start for home. Many of them had come quite a distance and had to drive most of that night.

The Champion Binders, Reapers and Mowers are manufactured by Whitely, Fassler & Keller, at Springfield, Ohio, proprietors of one of the largest establishments of the kind in the world. Every part of these machines, down to a burr, is made right at their factories, none but the best and strongest material is being used and their capacity for turning out complete machines is one every two minutes. The frame of their new mowers, even to the bolts and rivets, is manufactured of pure steel. In fact their harvesting machines, after a fair test are pronounced the most durable and serviceable in the country.

It may strike our readers as extraordinary that twenty-four of these harvesting machines are being delivered at this early day and so far in advance of harvest. It certainly shows that the manufacturers and their general agents, Messrs. L. H. Lee & Bro., Baltimore, Md., are wide-awake and experienced business men, who realize that the great factors of success are—"always to be in time" and then lead in stocking the market with the very best and most satisfactory wares, regardless of cost. Another reason for this early and large delivery is that these firms have active and faithful agents in all parts of the country who are continually at work recommending and selling their machines.

Messrs. Van Pelt, Shoop & Co., of Centre Hall, Pa., through whom this delivery was made, are agents for the "Champion Machines" in this county, and farmers will always find a full line of repairs on hand at their shops. These gentlemen are ably assisted in this section of the county by Mr. Henry G. Royer, of Miles township, who by his untiring efforts has succeeded in selling up to date over thirty of these machines, and this recent delivery of machinery is mainly due to his energy and activity.

Finally in annexing the list of farmers to whom the twenty four Binders, Reapers and Mowers were delivered, we would also say that these men, who are among our most successful tillers of the soil, display much progressive spirit and enterprise and seem to believe in modern improvements and timely preparation.

—The Town Council met in special session last Monday evening for the purpose of organizing and closing its officers and committees for the ensuing year. The meeting resulted in the appointment of the following persons: Pres. J. F. Harter; Sec. B. O. Deininger; Treas. A. Walter; Street Commissioner, J. H. Maize; Attorney, D. F. Fortney. The different committees were formed as follows: Finance—A. C. Musser, Adolph Miller, E. C. Campbell. Street & Alley—Henry Fiedler, E. C. Campbell, John Breon. Nuisance—Adolph Miller, A. C. Musser, John Breon.

The first Saturday of each month was fixed upon for the regular meetings of council, to be held in Adolph Miller's business place.

As far as we can see the council's division of its forces was made judiciously and a careful and good management of our borough affairs may be looked for.

—Last Saturday evening John Miller cut up his first beef of the season and displayed the parts temptingly in his new and clean meat market on Main street. That he still retains his old time reputation as the butcher is shown by the fact that in less than three days' time he had disposed of 400 pounds of meat. Give John a call and he will always try to accomodate you.

—A missionary convention will be held by the Salem and the St. Paul's congregations, of the Aaronsburg charge, Reformed church beginning, at Salem's on the evening of the 16th of March, closing on the 17th, and at St. Paul's it will begin on the evening of the 17th and close on the 18th. The programme consists in interesting discussions of subjects bearing on the Missionary Work by able and prominent ministers.

—Two young ladies, one from this town, the other from Coburn, accompanied two gentlemen, emigrating to the West one day last week as far as Bellefonte. The grief at parting with their friends was so intense that the ladies failed to notice that the train returning to Coburn was moving out and when they became aware of the fact it required a brisk run and vigorous waving of handkerchiefs to induce the engineer to slacken up and take them along. Our informant says it was an amusing sight to see the ladies in their plight. "Scheiden, oh scheiden, thut weh!"

—The concert, announced in the JOURNAL several weeks ago, to be held in the old Reformed church at Aaronsburg will take place on Saturday evening, March 20th. The renowned solo singer, Prof. Lowell T. Meyer, as well as Prof. N. A. Bierly will be present and give valuable assistance. Dr. J. F. Harter and Cyrus Meyer will accompany the choruses on their cornets. A rare musical treat worth hearing may be expected, and the public is cordially invited to attend. Admission 25 cents.

Henry Keen's sale last Thursday was largely attended notwithstanding the very disagreeable weather. Everything sold well except the horses, only two of them being sold at the sale, the rest he disposed of since. In the evening a large party of young folks had a grand hop, for which the Kister brothers of Millheim furnished excellent music.

Altogether too many children at the public sales. Parents should keep them either at home or see that they are in school. Public sales are not fit places for them. JUMBO.

Mrs. Philip Gramley, accompanied by Catharine Hafer, left last Thursday for Indiana where they will visit a daughter of Mrs. Gramley.

The Reformed minister of this charge, Rev. Dotterer, was installed last Wednesday, Feb. 24. Rev. Land, of Centre Hall, Rev. Z A Yearick, of Aaronsburg and Prof. Wolf, of Spring Mills, were the officiating ministers.

Geo. Brechbill is buying up broken glassware. George says that he has a machine in his new shop that remelts the glass and turns out something in the shape of bottles.

Levi Frazer will move to Nittany this spring where he has rented a farm

John Jones will leave next week for Freeport, Ill., where he will engage in farming.

Your correspondent was pleased to have a chat with I. L. Loomis, passenger agent of Philadelphia, who traveled through this valley last Thursday selling tickets to parties who will leave this spring for the far West. Mr. Loomis informed us that he sold sixteen tickets to different parties of our valley.

Last week while Frank Snyder was chopping cord wood in Guistwite's woods, his axe glanced causing him to cut a deep gash in his right foot. Frank is doing as well as can be expected at present.

Miss Jennie Ruhl will leave for Bellefonte this week where she will engage in the housework of the Joseph Bros., merchants.

A certain young gent of this vicinity who borrowed his sister's finger ring, only, as he said, to wear it for a few weeks, but afterwards placed the ring on the forefinger of his expected spouse, was surprised the other Sunday when his sister confronted a certain young lady in Sunday school and demanded the removal of the ring. Of course the ring was removed without further ceremony, but Charley has not since been seen at Feldie's.

Mr. Isaac Gramley and his sister Mrs. Elmira Mannly, who were here visiting, left for their Western homes last Thursday.

Next Friday evening will be the closing of our singing. We understand the scholars will try to persuade the teacher, Mr. Bierly, to teach another term or at least part of a term.

Four of our young farmers have bought themselves the Champion Binder from Charlie Dunkle, agent, and accordingly where shipped to Coburn. These gents being notified thereof left on last Thursday for Coburn to take their binders home, but for some reason not known to us they did not see Brushvalley until Friday. We were told they stayed at Millheim to take part in the large dinner which the Champion Reaper company gave them as an inducement. Something was wrong boys, eh? SQUIBOB.

An Efficient Remedy

In all cases of Bronchial and Pulmonary Affections is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. As such it is recognized and prescribed by the medical profession, and in many thousands of families, for the past forty years, it has been regarded as an invaluable household remedy. It is a preparation that only requires to be taken in very small quantities, and a few doses of it administered in the early stages of a cold or cough will effect a speedy cure, and may, very possibly, save life. There is no doubt whatever that

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has preserved the lives of great numbers of persons, by arresting the development of Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Pulmonary Consumption, and by the cure of those dangerous maladies. It should be kept ready for use in every family where there are children, as it is a medicine far superior to all others in the treatment of Croup, the alleviation of Whooping Cough, and the cure of Colds and Influenza, ailments peculiarly incidental to childhood and youth. Promptitude in dealing with all diseases of this class is of the utmost importance. The loss of a single day may, in many cases, entail fatal consequences. Do not waste precious time in experimenting with medicines of doubtful efficacy, while the malady is constantly gaining a deeper hold, but take at once the speediest and most certain to cure,

HOW TO KILL THE BLUES.

Generally speaking, if you are troubled with 'the blues,' and cannot tell why, you may be sure it springs from physical weakness.

Instead of lying on the sofa and counting painful ideas, if you are a despairing lover, a hypochondriac or a yaletudinarian, you should be up and stirring yourself. The blood of a melancholy man is thick and slow, creeping sluggishly through the veins, like muddy waters in a canal; the blood of the merry, chirping philosopher is clear and quick, brisk as a newly broached champagne.

Try, therefore, to set your blood in motion. Try rather what a smart walk will do for you; set your pegs in motion on rough rocky ground, or hurry them up a steep craggy hill; build stone wall, swing an axe over a pile of hickory or rock maple; turn a grindstone; dig ditches; in short, do anything that will start the perspiration, and you will soon cease to have your brains lined with black, as Burton expresses it, or to raise in the morning, as Cowper did, 'like an infernal frog out of Acheron, crowned with the ooze and mud of meloncholy.'

Don't Undervalue the Boy.

Too many men make their boys feel that they are of little or no account while they are boys. Lay a responsibility on a boy, and he will meet it in a manful spirit. On no account ignore their disposition to investigate. Help them to understand things. Encourage them to know what they are about. We are to apt to treat a boy's seeking after knowledge, as mere idle curiosity. "Don't ask questions," is poor advice to boys. If you do not explain puzzling things to them, you oblige them to make many experiments before they find out, and though experimental knowledge is best, in one sense, in another it is not, for that which can be explained clearly, does not need experimenting with. If the principle involved is understood, there is no future trouble, and the boy can go ahead intelligently.

Do not wait for the boy to grow up before you begin to treat him as an equal. A proper amount of confidence and words of encouragement and advice, and giving him to understand that you trust him in many ways, helps to make a man of him long before he is a man in either stature or years.—American Agriculturist for February.

Sweet-Minded Women.

So great is the influence of a sweet-minded woman on those around her it is almost boundless. It is to her that friends come in seasons of sorrow and sickness for health and comfort. One soothing touch of her kindly hand works wonders in the feverish child; a few words let fall from her lips in the ear of a sorrow-stricken sister do much to raise the load of grief that is blowing its victim down to the dust in anguish. The husband comes home worn out with the pressure of business and feeling irritable with the world in general; but when he enters the cosy sitting-room and sees the blaze of the bright fire, and meets his wife's smiling face, he succumbs in a moment to the soothing influences which act as the balm of Gilead to his wounded spirits, that are wounded with the stern realities of life. The rough school boy flies into a rage from the taunts of his companions to find solace in his mother's smile; the little one, full of grief with her large trouble, finds a haven of rest on the mother's breast; and so one might go on with instance after instance of the influence that a sweet-minded woman has in the social life with which she is connected. Beauty is an insignificant power when compared to hers.

PYÆMIA

Is the most virulent form of blood-poisoning. Less speedily fatal, but not less certainly so, is the vitiation of the blood of which the first symptoms are Pimples, Sties, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions. When the taint of Scrofula gives warning of its presence by such indications, no time should be lost in using AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, the only perfect and reliable medicine for the purification of the blood.

SCROFULA

Is a foul corruption in the blood that rots out all the machinery of life. Nothing will eradicate it from the system and prevent its transmission to offspring but AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. This preparation is also the only one that will cleanse the blood of Mercurial poison and the taint of Contagious Diseases. Impoverished blood is productive of

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.
